

An Invitation to the American Cause's Summer 2009 Conference Building a New Majority

It's been a few years since we've had a national conference for The American Cause, but now is as an important time as ever for conservatives to ask tough questions. No one questions that these are serious times for our movement, our party, and most importantly our country.

Since our inception in 1993, The American Cause has urged the conservative movement and Republican Party to reject foreign interventionism, free trade, open borders, and big government.

Now with Democratic control of Congress and the White House and the biggest economic crisis since the Great Depression, are we too late? Has our changing culture, economy, and demographics of our country passed a tipping point where Conservatives can no longer rule with a mandate? Or can we adjust to and/or change these trends to bring back the days of the Nixon/Reagan landslides.

Pat and Bay Buchanan invite you to join many of the nation's to conservative leaders to discuss these important issues.
